WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 .- Quietly and simply, in the presence of the bride's relatives and personal friends, a few of the members of Washington's official society, and of several hundred of the general public, Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and Miss Mary Endicott were married, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, in St. John's Episcopal Church. The church was absolutely without floral or other decorations, and the awning stretched across the sidewalk to the carriage step was the only sign of any unusual ceremony. No cards or formal invitations had been issued: there were no best men or brides-maids. and the entire service was characterized by extreme simplicity. Such of the friends of the family as had been verbally invited to attend took seats in the tine church, half an of hour before the ceremony began. The Cabinet meeting was ended at an early hour, so as to permit the members to be present at the service, and they were, in most cases, accompanied by their wives. The President and Mrs. Cleveland entered the church just before 2 o'clock, and were escorted to seats in one of the pews in the first row. Members of the Endicott family and relatives were seated immediately in the rear, while as many of the pub lie as could find room in the little church, filled the gallery and hallways.

Mr. Chamberlain entered the church at 2 o'clock and waited at the chancel. His appearance was the signal to the organist, who immedistely began to play the wedding march from Lohengrin, and the bride, leaning on her father's arm, attired in a pearl-gray traveling dress and wearing a dark bonnet, passed up the right aisle, and, joining the bridegroom, knelt before the altar. Rev. Dr. Leonard, assisted by Rev. Mr. Franks, of Salem, Mass., performed the episcopal wedding service. Both bride and groom gave back the responses in a firm and audible voice. Prayer was pronounced and Joseph Chamberlain and Mary Endicott were man and wife. Again the organ pealed forth, and to its strains the party slowly passing along the left aisle, out of the church and into the carriages, were driven immediately to the home of the bride's parents. A reception was neighbor the residence of the Secretary, and the newly-married couple received the congratulations of the invited guests. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain drove to the Pennsylvania railroad York, although their destination was not known, even to the bride's parents. They will return to Washington within a week and be the guests of Secretary Endicott for a few days. On the 26th they will sail for Europe.

The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is fifty-two years old and Miss Endicott less than twentyfive. He has children older than she. When he was twenty-five he married Harriet, daughter of Archibald Kenrick, Esq., Berrow Court, Edgboston. She died in 1862. Pive years after he married Florence Henne, of the same town, and she died in 1875. Mr. Chamberlain is a native of London, and at the time of his first marriage was in business with his father in Birmingbam, where they manufactured wood-screws. Presumably these screws were of a good quality, for Mr. Chamberlain has an income of $150,000 a year, besides a house in the most aristocratic quarter of London, and a country-seat near Birmingham. He has held many high offices in England besides being a member of the House of Commons. His friends were Gladstone and John Bright. He is a noted free-trader in politics, and at this time differs with Mr. Gladstone on the Irish question. He is youthful looking. wears no beard, has a prominent nose, and of course eyeglasses, that necessary adjunct of Englishmen. He dresses and looks like a high-bred gentleman, and his manners are suave and courteous. He is quite jolly in conversation, and thoroughly enjoyed himself during the four months he passed in Washington last winter. He came in November with the joint commission to amicably settle by treaty the disputes connected with the fisheries. He, with his colleagues, was presented by Secretary Bayard to the President the 24th of November, 1887. On Saturday, the 26th, the festivities in his honor began. The Secretary of State gave a dinner to the commission, and those invited to meet them were Mr. Justice-elect Lamar, Mr. Justice Bradley and Mr. Justice Field. The British minister and Miss West issued invitations for the same evening to meet simply "Mr. Chamberlain." The Courier Journal had a full account of that beautiful ball, which is now alluded to because your correspondent was stand-ing near when Mr. Chamberlain, arriving from the dinner at 11 P. M., was introduced to Miss Endicott, she being the first lady Miss West presented. It was Saturday night, and the in-vitations read for 9 o'clock. As all who enjoyed dancing in the beautiful ball-room of the legation knew the music would cease at midnight, they were prompt in arriving and quickly deserted the drawing rooms for the ball. Miss West kept her position near the door of the middle drawing-room to welcome lady guests as they entered. For this reason only Miss Endicott and a few others who did not dance were with Miss West when the gentleman, in company with Secretary Bayard, arrived. Miss Endicott is very ready in conversation, and as soon as Mr. Chamberlain was introduced a lively conversation ensued. The young lady has a brilliant color, light brown hair and large blue eyes. She looked handsome in blue tulle over silk, and so the Britisher seemed to think, for he was in no hurry to mingle with the guests and enlarge his circle of new acquaintances. Every one remembers what a social time there was during December, January and February. It was observed that the Secretary of War was always among the invited guests to dinners given to Mr. Chamberlain, and when ladies were included his daughter was invited. Toward the close of February Mrs. Hitt gave a lunch to young ladies. While the party were waiting in the drawing-room for a tardy girl, Mr. Chamber-lain accidentally called. When she did not arrive Mr. Chamberlain was invited by the hostess to take the vacant place. He gladly accepted, and was given the seat next to Miss Endicott. He was brilliant, and being the only man among more than a dozen cirls, he made himself so numerous that the male element appeared to be largely in the majority. Not even after that notable occasion could those present determine whether the fair Priscilla had said yea or nay. But when the other members of the fishery commission noticed that their honorable chairman lingered in Washington day after day, when their work was concluded, and the treaty submitted to the State Department, they attributed his delay to unwillingness to leave until be received either a dismissal from the daughter of the Secretary of War, or an intimation that he might return to claim her as his wife. His entreaty to the lady was more successful than his treaty to the Senate, which was rejected; but he comes back a successful wooer, and that to him just now is of more im-portance than successful diplomacy.

STATUE OF SEWARD.

Unveiling, at Auburn, N. Y., of a Bronze

Memorial to the Great Statesman. AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 15 .- The ceremony of unveiling the Seward status took place to-day, in the presence of a large concourse of people. including many distinguished guests from out of town. The W. H. Seward Republican Club, of New York, came in a body. The public schools were closed for the day, and several local military and civic organizations attended in a body. The weather was unpropitious, and the outdoor exercises, with the exception of the simple act of unveiling, were adjourned to the opera-house. A commodious platform erected for the occasion accommodated a dense throng, and at 11:30 the whole vicinity of the park where the statue stands was black with a sea of umbrellas and people. Ex-Mayor Wheeler called the assemblage to order, and at precisely 11:35 little Fan-nie Seward, daughter of General Seward and granddaughter of the statesman, unveiled the statue. A flag waved from a neighboring house top was the signal for the firing of salutes of artillery and the ringing of the chimes of St. Peter's. The adjournment of the exercises was then announced, and the crowd dispersed, many of the distinguished guests driving to Fort Hill to view Seward's tomb.

The statue is of bronze, and rises from a pedestal nine feet in height, the figure of Seward being just one-haif larger than life size. It represents him standing in the act of delivering his famous higher-law sentiment, his right foot extended, his right hand impressively pointing heavenward. With the pedestal, its height from the ground is eighteen feet. The sculptor is Walter E. Robinson, of Auburn, who was present. The statue is presented to Auburn by citizens, and upon its east face is this inscription: "Presented, Nov. 15, 1888, to the city of Auburn by the townsmen and friends of William H. Seward, in commemoration of his beneficent life and of his distinguished services to State, to Nation and to man-

The north face is inscribed: "William H. Seward-1801-1872;" and the west face has the last eight lines of Randolph's sonnet:

How through these years in silence thou has borne The cruel doubt, the slanders of debate, The assassin's knife, and keener blade of scorn How couldst thou pause each step to vindicate, Of thy surpassing work; lo, it is done; Freedom enshrined in our regenerate state, And they who were divided made as one.

The south face bears a quotation from Seward's California speech in the Senate, March 11.

The Constitution regulates our stewardship, the Constitution devotes the domain to union, to justice, to defense, to welfare and to liberty. But there is a higher law than Constitution, which regulates our authority over the domain and devotes it to some Below, on the base, in large capitals, is the name "Seward." The exercises in Genesee Opera-house attracted an immense audience, and the formal speech of presentation to the city was delivered by Theodore M. Pomeroy. The oration of the day was delivered by Senator Evarts. It was a masterly review of the career of the dead man, and included a tribute to his patriotic and diplomatic qualities, which were so often displayed in behalf of his country.

THE WOMEN'S CONGRESS.

Papers, Essays and Discussions on Home Life, Family Training and Morality.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 15 .- At the executive session of the Women's Association, this morning, reports from various committees were made, embracing the moral, industrial and educational conditions of women in the several States. According to these reports the general condition of women is advancing steadily. Some comparative statistics on the question of the labor of men and women were presented, but they were of a fragmentary character. The report of the treasurer shows that all bills have been paid and that there is a comfortable balance in bank.

In the afternoon Mrs. Nellie Reid Cady, of Iowa, read a paper on "Organization Among Women." She said in the guilds of the middle ages women were admitted to the fullest membership, but in America, until fifty years ago, woman's voice was unheard in associations or conventions. At the last international couneil, at Washington, fifty women's societies were represented, and these were not a tithe of those now in existence. The public-school system is lacking in the fundamental principles of all true development. Legislation has taken the place of personal morality. The age demands instruction in moral law, and in the Bible only can be found the divine laws of sociology, teaching the duties of men and women in the greatest of living organizations-the home, the State and bumanity.

A paper entitled "Women as Guardians of the Public Health," was read by Dr. Nelly V. Mark, of Baltimore. She said that the result of the bodily indiscretions of individuals upon future generations was as far-reaching as the result of personal crime upon the existing generation. All breaches of the laws of health are physical sin. When this is generally seen, physical training will receive all the attention it deserves. The large death rate among children chiefly due, she continued, to the ignorance of mothers regarding the laws of health and life. The modern young woman is also ignorant of the laws governing the mind and does not know how to develop mental power. Every child is governed by heredity and environment. The traits and habits inherited from a father may be modified or corrected by a mother. The best thing for women is to set their ideals so that they will not marry into families of drunkards, or wed with anyons who has vicious or immoral habits. Through heredity we get physical and mental debility on the one hand, and health and vigor on the other. It is for a woman to say whether, by a proper or improper marriage, her children shall be the salt of the earth or the refuse of the

Mrs. Henrietta Walcott read a paper on "The Present as a Transition Period," and Mrs. Lillian Whiting, of Boston, closed the afternoon session with a paper on "Realism in Fiction." At the evening session Mrs. Ella C. Lapham, of New York, read a paper on "Manual Training for Girls," and the Rev. Antoinette Blackwell, of Newark, N. J., a paper on "Where is the Work of Women Equal, Where Superior, to That of Man' A general discussion followed the reading of both essays.

Church vs. Civil Authority.

New York, Nov. 13 .- When Father McGlynn was excommunicated from St. Stephen's Church John McGuire and his family left with him. At a meeting of the Anti-Poverty Society, afterwards founded by Dr. McGlynn, on Feb. 19, McGuire suddenly expired. The church authorities refused to allow his remains to be paced in Calvary Cemetery, the Catholic burying ground. A suit was brought by his son to restrain the authorities from interfering with the burial and for $1,000 damages. The case came up to-day, and evidence was adduced to show that the lot was purchased in 1870, and that the deceased was a devout Catholic up to his death. The defense claimed that the followers of Dr. McGlynn had excommunicated themselves. Rev. Dr. Burtsell, of the Church of the Epiphany, said McGuire had not violated any church rules by attending the lecture of Dr. McGlynn. The case is still on.

Hanged for Killing a Jail Guard. WATERLOO, N. Y., Nov. 15.-Charles Johnson was hanged at twenty minutes past 10 this morning for the murder of John Walters. Two men, Charles Johnson and Caldwell, were confined in the Waterloo jail awaiting trial on the charge of horse-stealing on the day of the crime, Jan. 10, 1887. When, on the morning of that day, the guard, John Walters, went to the cell where the two men were and unlocked the door, Johnson struck him a terrible blow on the head with a stove-shaker and fractured his skull. They then made a dash for liberty, but the sheriff, fully armed, blocked the way, and they were driven back to their cell. Walters lingered some days and then died. Caldwell was tried and sentenced to Auburn for life. The trial of Johnson resulted in the execution to-

Riotous Street-Car Strikers.

New York, Nov. 15 .- A new phase of the strike on the Nostrand avenue and Green Point and Lorimer street-car lines, in Brooklyn, developed itself this morning. At 10:30 a car was started from the penitentiary, near Prospect Park, on the Lee-avenue line. Twelve mounted policemen and a patrol wagon escorted it, but no obstruction was met until Myrtle avenue was reached. Here a crowd of strikers had congregated, and stones and bricks by the dozen were hurled at the car. The police charged the mob. and after a lively fight dispersed the rioters and made six arrests. The attempt to run the car over the entire route was abandoned.

Strike Against Unsatisfactory Hours, PITTSBURG, Nov. 15 .- The 500 puddlers at the Jones & Laughlin American iron-works struck this morning against the change in work-

Six or seven cars were attached to the forenoon passenger train and sent north, but no other freight has gone out or come in. The company has a squad of deputy sheriffs on duty in the yards, and announced that a train would go south this afternoon. The conductor responded to assist in getting out the train, but when everything was in readiness he asked for his crew of brakemen. None being forthcoming he refused to go out without them, and although the company last night claimed that many of the men were willing to work but were afraid, not one of them offered to man the train this afternoon. The strikers are quiet and orderly, and confident. It is not believed either conductors or engineers will start out without brakemen. A Murderer Commits Suicide. Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 15. - Fritz Anschlag, the German who was to have been executed Friday for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock, at Garden Grove, in January last, and who, in a statement made a few days ago, also confessed to the killing of Julius Feugh, a neighbor, in Butte county, in 1885, both of which crimes were committed avowedly for the purpose of securing their landed property or mon-ey, committed suicide last night by taking strychnine and died at 12:30 this morning. Rev. U. S. Glick, who has been constant in his visitations to Anschlag, left the prisoner about 10 o'clock, and a short time after, the latter, who was lying on the bed, asked the death-watch for a glass of water. A little later he asked that Rev. Mr. Glick be sent for. At the same time Anschlag was seized with convulsions. Jailer Russell and physicians were hastily summoned. The dying man's paroxysms were so terrible that it was almost impossible to use the stomach pump, and all efforts to save his life proved futile. Before the final struggle he stated that he had kept the strychnine concealed for a long time in his cell in a plug of tobacco.

DO NOT BE DECEIVED

The Indianapolis Natural-gas Company expects to UNDERSELL ALL COMPETITORS in the gas business. We make all contracts for domestic, store or office use at 30 per cent. off. We will add to these contracts a clause AGREEING AT THEIR TERMINATION TO CONTINUE TO SUPPLY GAS AS LOW OR LOWER THAN ANY COMPETITOR WILL THEN SUP-PLY YOU. Also, when the time comes, as it surely will, when it will be hard work to get a gas supply from any company, we shall give the preferance to our early patrons.

The inducement that is being held out by others that they will next year or some other time supply you at half price is MISLEADING and a SUBTERFUGE. Buy only of the company that SELLS CHEAP

NOW, and agrees in the contract to continue so to do. This gives you a certain advantage. INDIANAPOLIS NATURAL - GAS COMPANY 68 East Market Street.
